MANY VOTE FOR TINLEY HOMECOMING QUEEN TO BE CROWNED JUNE 19

Interest in Contest Aroused in Eight Communities in Surrounding Area

They're Grandparents And Great Grand Parents All at Once

When a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bixler of Frankfort May 12, in St. Joseph's hospital, Joliet, that made Mr. and Mrs. John Bixler of Frankfort, grandparents. The same day a daughter was born in St. Bernard's hospital, Chicago to Mr. and Mrs. William Dunn.

Mrs. Dunn is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Keuch of Tinley Park and a grand daughter of the John Bixler's at Frankfort, so that makes the Bixlers great grand parents also, all on the same day.

It also made the Herbert Bixlers parents and great uncle and aunt for Herbert Bixler is a brother of Mrs. Keuch. The advent of the Dunn baby made Mr. and Mrs. Keuch, grandparents, and the Bixler baby made them uncle and aunt. Mrs. Dunn is a cousin of the Bixler baby and the two new babies are second cousins to each other. The Bixler baby who weighed eight pounds six ounces was named Chianne Gall and the Dunn baby who weighed seven pounds nine ounces has been named Jenice Lee.

At last report everyone knows who is who and all are happy.

Miss Rosemary Butzen, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. Her baby blue tulle gown was made with an illusion neckline, bouffant skirt and short cap sleeves. She carried red roses and wore a blue net hat lined with tiny blue flowers.

Yvonne Butzen, sister of the bride, was flower girl and wore a yellow tulle gown styled similar to that of the bride and her yellow net cap was lined with small yellow flowers.

New Bill Introduced By Local Law Makers

The following important news is released by the Taxpayers Federation of Illinois, by George E. Mahin, secretary:

Present tax rate limitations on maximum taxing power of local governments expire on December 31, 1952—and then the lid's off, unless new legislation is enacted to protect the taxpayers. There is serious question whether tax rate limitations of the same nature as the present transition limitations would be constitutional on a permanent basis. Before the 1951 session when this whole problem must be considered, members of the General Assembly need to know whether such limitations would be constitutional—and taxpayers must know too. The Illinois Supreme Court alone can answer that question. To get an Illinois Supreme Court decision, legislation that can be tested must be enacted at this session.

Consequently, Representatives Orville E. Hodge, Thomas A. Bolger, J. Harold Downey, Joliet, W. J. McDonald, Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers Grove, Leon M. Schuler, W. O. Verhines, and Warren Wood, Joliet, introduced two bills for the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois.

H. B. 902 amends the downstate county and multiple-county health act to provide that the permanent limit, unless changed by referendum or by the General Assembly, shall be the maximum tax rate that could have been extended on July 1, 1949. This will make possible a suit to test whether present tax rate limitations would be constitutional on a permanent basis. This bill will not hurt county or multiple-county health districts since it gives them exactly the same taxing power they now have until 1953 anyway, and since this limitation will be reconsidered by the General Assembly in 1951 along with the entire problem of tax rate limitation for all local governments.

H. B. 903 amends the special tax rate for building purposes of downstate municipal libraries. There are only three municipalities in the entire state that levy this special library tax, West Chicago, Fairfield and Johnston City. This tax is made subject to a permanent limitation unless changed by referendum or by the General Assembly, of 110 percent of the maximum permissible 1945 rate multiplied by the 1945 ratio of assessed value to full value in the county in which the levy is made (this ratio has already been determined and published by the Department of Revenue). This will make possible another suit to test the constitutionality of such a permanent tax rate limitation.

H. B. 883 was introduced for the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois by Representatives Hugh Green, T. J. Sullivan and G. William Horsely. This bill provides that local governments other than Chicago can qualify for State aid for poor relief by levying a tax in an amount which, when added to the cash balance, equals the amount produced by a rate of one mill on the last known total equalized value of taxable property in that taxing district. For example, if a one mill rate (10c on each $100 of value) would produce $100,000 and the cash balance was $40,000, then the local government would have to levy only $60,000 for poor relief to qualify for State aid. Under present law, the levy would have to be $100,000. Since local governments can't foresee what business conditions will be months in advance, the local officials too often play safe by adopting a levy requiring a 10c tax rate in order to be sure of State aid if necessary, and the cash balance grows. This bill will eliminate any excuse for maintaining or building up a cash balance.

The United States Senate has passed the federal aid to education bill. Now is the time to let your Representative know how you feel on this bill, one way or the other.

There's a "Must Read" article in the May 14 issue of the Saturday Evening Post on findings of the Hoover Commission—"The Battle that Squanders Billions."

BUY OUR CHICKS

They live, grow, lay and pay! We hatch all popular breeds. The first 12 hours in a chick's life is very important. They should have rest, they should not be jiggled around on a train, getting cold or overheated.

We hatch our own chicks, giving them the proper rest and care. When you get them from us, they are rested and ready to be fed. Our breeders are a regular breeding mash which assures you of a strong, healthy chick.

We also have a good supply of oil and electric brooders in various sizes; contains and feeders. We manufacture a high grade feed for poultry and live stock and sell it to you wholesale. Give us a trial and buy the BEST for LESS.

"Ironrite helped smooth out the kinks in my back"

says Mrs. Burl Woodward
4193 Biddle Avenue
Wayne, Michigan

1. "I can recommend Ironrite to any woman who wants to end the drudgery of hand ironing. Not long ago, I had a major spinal operation. My doctor advised a whole year of rest from hard work like hand ironing. But, with my family, that was impossible. So we got our Ironrite Ironer.

"I still have to take it easy most of the day, but I find that it's easy to relax when I sit down and iron at my Ironrite. Everything's just right for comfort!"

"Believe me, Ironrite has helped smooth out the kinks in my back. If you value your health, and appearance, too—see an Ironrite today!

2. "With 21 shirts to iron each week, hand ironing would be out of the question for me. But with my Ironrite, I can iron a whole week's wash in practically no time.

3. "Thanks to Ironrite's two com-

iron everything, with nothing to finish by hand. Even puffs and ruffles are easy, on handy Do-All ironing points."

Plant Corn Thicker to Increase Per Acre
Yields and Reduce Crop Production Costs

CHICAGO—If you want to get top possible corn yields this year, suit your rate of corn planting to the fertility potential of your soil, says
the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

Where the land is fertile and has a good moisture-holding capacity, you can average 14,000 stalks to the acre.
The ears will be smaller with such a planting rate, but the overall yield will be much higher.

The higher yield from more stalks per acre means a greater turnover of your soil's fertility. Higher yields will lower your production costs and increase your profits.

University of Minnesota agrono-mists found that ½-pound ears give the most corn per acre. They averaged ears of this size when they planted corn at the rate of 4 stalks
to the hill in rows 40 by 40 inches.

When corn was planted 2 stalks to the hill in 40 by 40-inch rows, ears were much larger, but overall yield much smaller. Corn planted too thin does not give enough ears to make full use of the soil's supply of plant food
and moisture.

Illinois and Indiana research men found, too, that the highest yields came from corn ears that didn't go over a half pound apiece.

The committee suggests these steps for maintaining the soil's crop
producing ability:

1—Return all crop residues and manure to the soil.

2—Supplement with commercial plant food the fertility sold off the farm via marketed grain, livestock and dairy products.

3—Use tillage measures that keep topsoil and moisture at home. That includes contour cultivation.

Plant Food Called
'Good Buy' at '49
Farm Price Levels

CHICAGO—Stressing that fertilizer is a "good buy" at present prices, Missouri University agricultural economists declared that the generous use of plant food should be profitable for farmers this year.

"Money spent for fertilizer is an investment that will pay out in a short time," these economists point out. "It will get more efficient crop production—more bushels or pounds
of feed per acre with little or no additional labor cost. Fertilizer prices have increased much less than the price of farm products in recent years."

Fertilizer does its best job of crop boosting when it is teamed with management practices that build up soil structure and keep the land in place
after it is built up, the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee declared.

"When you build soil structure,
you provide the most favorable growing conditions for crops," says a statement issued by the committee.
"Well-structured soil is a better 'warehouse' for plant nutrients and moisture. Crop roots have all the leg room they need to forage for nutrients, water and air. The result is higher yields at a lower cost per unit."

"The way to build soil structure is to follow a rotation centered around deep-rooted legumes and grasses.
Legumes such as sweet clover and alfalfa add organic matter. Their drill-like taproots bore through tough, tightly packed soil and open it to air and water. When grasses and legumes are well fed with fertilizer carrying phosphate and potash they develop sturdy growth above and below ground. Plowed under, the tops and roots enrich and mellow the soil."

Rock Island Installs
New Reservation
System on Line

An entirely new system of recording train reservations with a view of increased speed and efficiency for the traveling public has been introduced by the Rock Island Lines.

The new system, located in the Central Reservation Bureau of the railroad in the LaSalle street station, Chicago, is in the form of a circular rotating type reservation board equipped to hold the space listings of the Rock Island's Rockets and other main line high-speed passenger trains. The entire procedure of receiving requests for coach, Pullman and parlor car space, and the actual listings of the space is handled by reservation clerks who have the available space at their finger tips by merely spinning the circular file board and pulling the train diagram from the proper slot.

Calls for space are received directly by the reservation clerks through the flashing of light on a panel and they simply relay the desired information without leaving their positions on the board.

Each position has an electric clock,
and an overhead fluorescent lighting system providing "daylight illumination" at all times. The use of the rotating wheels eliminates delay in giving the space to the public and has made the railroad's method of handling reservations a smooth and fast operation.

The board is equipped to accommodate over 3000 units of space and to receive over 2000 telephone calls daily.

In addition to the new type reservation board, the railroad now has in regular use a Recordak photographing machine which preserves on film a permanent record of the train space diagrams. This method of filming the train diagrams does away with the tedious copying of some 25,000 diagrams a year from the original listings given to the train conductor on the day of the particular train's departure, and enables the convenient filing of these records in a small space. Approximately five years of recorded film can now be stored in a drawer which formerly would hold only one month's supply of diagrams.

In connection with these films on which the record of space issued is preserved, a special machine is employed for projecting the diagrams to "life-size" making it possible to read them quickly and clearly.

Besides the reservation bureau the Rock Island also maintains a complete staff of experts to provide travel and train information of all types.

Rats Are Dangerous

A pair of rats is capable of producing 120,000 descendants a year. When one realizes that there is a rat for approximately every one of the 140-000,000 persons in the United States,
an estimate of the total rat population
is recorded.

All cans should be tightly covered and, if possible, kept on a platform
eighteen inches off the ground.

Every effort should be made to have cellars ratproof. There should be a concrete floor, masonry walls and well fitting windows and doors. There should be no openings around pipes or wires and all drains should have narrow-slotted protective covers.

If all sanitary measures are employed in "building out" and "starving out" rats, the remainder can be eradicated by trapping and poisoning.
These methods must be watched carefully, however, because of the danger to children and animals.

Help your community to get rid of rats. Remember they breed disease, cause serious infections through their bites and are a curse to public health.

According to Childcraft books, paying children to be good or to take their cod-liver oil, is bribery and distorts their sense of values. Behavior should not be considered a business proposition.

that as a Post we are doing more than any other Post in the county, according to size in membership, in working with our community and our school. In presenting these outstanding boy and girl awards and also award

As far as the scientists are concerned, the Man in the Moon is "The little man who isn't there." According to Childcraft books, there is no air or water or living thing on the moon. It hasn't any light of its own and shines by reflected light from the sun. Compared to other heavenly bodies, the moon is only a hop, skip and jump away from the earth. It would take an airplane traveling 200 miles per hour
only 50 days to traverse the 240,000 miles from the earth to the moon.

The "danger in numbers" stemming from heavy traffic volumes is emphasized in the traffic safety posters being distributed by the Chicago Motor Club for display during May throughout 44,000 elementary school classrooms in Illinois and Indiana. Simple outlines of traffic dangers adjusted to the safety needs of differing age groups accompany the poster and provide application of the safety lesson. The poster was a winner in the nationwide contest conducted annually by the Chicago Motor Club and affiliated organizations of the Ameri-

"Hoosier Town" for Boys Expanded

The attention of public-spirited citizens throughout the nation is being focused on a nonsectarian community in Crown Point, Ind., for the problem boys of the Central Midwest. Founded by Father Michael Angelo Campagna 18 months ago, the community, known as Hoosier Town, is open to all wayward boys from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Its purpose is to weed out and correct our young offenders before they get into serious trouble. Judges and probation officers have been cooperative in referring young boys, guilty of minor offenses, to Hoosier Town rather than committing them to reformatories and penitentiaries where, through association with incorrigibles they might become hardened in crime. Father Campagna says that he goes on the theory that correction begins in the high chair and not in the electric chair. He contends that 95 percent of our young offenders are the result of negligence and improper training in the home, and that, if given the opportunity, they can be saved for themselves and for society through kindness and proper guidance.

His formula for rehabilitating young offenders consists only of kindness and proper guidance. Hoosier Town has none of the stigma of a penal institution—has no bars—no corporal punishment. Those going contrary to the rules of the community are punished only by being deprived of minor privileges.

A program to expand the facilities at Hoosier Town to accommodate a minimum of 350 boys will begin in the Central Midwest states on May 1st, the Catholic priest stated. He hopes that some individual or group in every community in the area will volunteer to represent the movement locally. Those interested should write to Father Michael Angelo Campagna, Hoosier Town, Crown Point, Ind.

Farmers Head List of Alcoholics

Results of a survey recently conducted by the Keeley Institute, famed medical rehabilitation center for alcoholics, Dwight, Ill., show that farmers head the list of drinkers by occupation.

The Keeley survey covers 65 different occupations and includes 13,471 patients treated by the famed institute from 1930 through 1948.

A total of 1,553 farmers, constituting 11.5 per cent of all patients, have been treated there during the past 18 years.

Next in line on the "leading drinkers" list, in the order shown here, are: salesmen, merchants, mechanics, clerks, lawyers, foremen and managers, railroad men, physicians, and manufacturers.

"While we are situated in the middle west and are easily accessible to farmers," James H. Oughton, Jr., director of the Keeley Institute, pointed out, "our patients come from all over the world."

The Lord's Supper

Lesson for May 22, 1949

LET US CLEAR UP some very common misunderstandings of what the Christian religion is. Some (both enemies and friends) think it consists in turning one's back on the world, living in a sort of happy wonderland where the evil of the world is altogether shut out and forgotten. Another notion is that Christianity presents an angry God (or one who can very easily be made angry) laying down the law to mankind. Another is that Christianity is a purely individual affair. And still another is that Christian religion consists of the teachings of Jesus and that is all it is. Every one of these misunderstandings vanishes in the light that shines around the Lord's Supper.

Dr. Foreman

Betrayal

PEOPLE SOMETIMES think that religion shuts men's eyes to the ugly realities of life. Some religions try to do so; but not the religion of Christ. He knew the kind of world this is; he never let his disciples forget it.

On that last night, dark forces were abroad. Jesus' enemies were closing in on him. One of his own circle would betray him. Yet it was in that sort of atmosphere, heavy with betrayal and hatred, that Jesus began this sacrament of faith, hope and love.

The true Christian does not live in a fool's paradise, he does not imagine that everything is lovely in the nicest possible words. The sacrament which is the heart of his worship is itself a reminder of the ugliness of the world which man's sin creates.

Blessing

"AND HE BLESSED the bread . . ." If Christianity consisted mainly of condemning wickedness and denouncing sinners, then at the center of our worship we would have some symbol of dread and awe, like fire and brimstone, a consuming flame.

But no—at the heart of our worship is a thing as simple, plain and friendly as a loaf of bread, bread on which the blessing of God has been asked. Blessing, not cursing; invitation, not threatening, is at the heart of our religion.

Whenever you see some one whose chief idea of being a "good Christian" is going around proclaiming the meanness of the world, cawing at everybody and everything.

Breaking

"AND BROKE IT, and gave . . ." Artists have tried in a single picture to express the meaning of Christianity. Some of the pictures are beautiful, but many of them miss an important truth. What shall it be? A picture of a shipwrecked woman clinging to a rock? Of a saint praying in a long solitary vigil? These leave out something vital. For Christianity is a fellowship. No Christian is complete by himself.

At the heart of our religion is a Communion. Few if any Protestant churches allow any one even a minister, to give the Holy Communion to himself, by himself.

The true Christian never finds himself, his true self, alone; only in fellowship. A Christian belongs with other Christians as much as one coal in a bed of coals belongs with all the rest.

Blood

JESUS TEACHINGS are so important, so full of wisdom and of living power, that often some one will say that Jesus was a teacher and only a teacher, and that following his teachings is all that Christianity is. Jesus did not think of it in this way.

True, his teaching is of the utmost importance; but that was not and is not all. As Middleton Murry said years ago, Jesus was the only teacher who has died for his teaching. But he died more than that: he died for those he taught.

The cup at the Holy Communion reminds every one who partakes of it that Christ was not only a teacher, he was a sacrifice.

SHORT STORY

Mr. Diggles On Duty

By MARY WHITEFORD

MR. DIGGLES kept his head down as though he were studying the prescription, scarcely hearing Mrs. Tompkins voice through the noise of blood thudding in his temples. When he tried to speak, his lips were dry and his tongue moved nervously over them. "I beg your pardon, Mrs. Tompkins, what was that you said?"

"I said if you haven't a delivery boy I'll wait for the three o'clock bus, but I'm anxious to get back as soon as I can."

He looked again at Dr. Price's cramped handwriting. "Oh, I'll deliver it, Mrs. Tompkins. I'm sorry to learn Mr. Tompkins isn't well."

"I told him it's just his bad disposition coming out. I told Dr. Price I certainly hated to drag him out in weather like this just for a stomach ache. Doctor says he'll be all right in a day or two."

Mr. Diggles took the handkerchief from the pocket of his grey alpaca coat and wiped his forehead. The moment he used to dream of years ago, was here at last. This would cost Dr. Price his practice.

The pity was, Dr. Price would never know he could have saved himself, if he hadn't made it so clear that a man who mixed prescriptions wasn't supposed to know about diagnosis. Dr. Price would never know what he'd done to himself when he told Mrs. White she might as well give the twins a chocolate soda as Diggles' Own Whooping Cough Mixture. Because of Dr. Price's new ways of doing things, no one bought Diggles' Ready Rheumatism Reliever now. Shots, it was, the doctor was giving for everything. Not prescriptions.

Manslaughter, they called it. He wet his lips. Well, no one could expect Mr. Diggles to interfere with Dr. Price's prescriptions again. Not a second time.

Though it was so many years ago, he could feel the flush of anger that flooded his face remembering the day he'd called Dr. Price up, and suggested that maybe the heart medicine he ordered for Mr. Venables was too strong.

"I know what I'm doing. Just mind your own business, Diggles, and I can mind mine."

He looked again at the prescription. There was no mistaking the symbol and he'd fill it as it stood. He reached for the bottle and removed the cork. Carefully, he measured out the prescribed dose.

MR. DIGGLES straightened suddenly, staring at the partly filled mortar. A feeling of nausea swept through him as he snatched it up and flung the contents into the

Dr. Price sat down and mopped his forehead.

sink. His hand, replacing the bottle on the shelf, trembled.

Outside, the wind howled and flakes of ice made a cold noise beating the window pane.

Slowly, he walked toward the telephone. After all, just as many people swore by Dr. Price as trusted Diggles.

As he waited, listening to Dr. Price's telephone bell ringing, the shop door opened. Mr. Diggles put down the receiver and went to the front. Dr. Price was on the mat, stamping the snow from his feet.

"Diggles, will you let me see the prescription Mrs. Tompkins just brought in?"

"I was just trying to call you about it, Dr. Price. I felt there was some little inaccuracy."

Dr. Price nodded. "Something told me. But I wasn't really worried. I knew you'd catch a mistake if there was one. It's a great comfort to me to know that a substantial man like you is checking up on me, Diggles."

"I have to do what I can. A man has to do his duty. He smiled and stood up."

"That's right, doctor. I guess duty becomes a habit if you do it long enough." The wind screamed into the shop as Dr. Price opened the door and went out. It was a bleak, bitter day, but in Mr. Diggles' heart it was suddenly summer.

Owners of John Deere tractor cultivators are indeed fortunate! A new rotary hoe attachment is now available that permits cultivation at normal speeds between the tender young corn plants as well as between the rows. Consisting of four malleable rotary hoe wheels on a steel axle with attaching drawbar, this simple device can be attached to your tractor cultivator in a matter of minutes. The attachment fits between the rigs, directly over the row. In addition to killing all the weeds, this type of cultivation admits air and life-giving sunshine to the soil.

ELM ILLS INSPIRE BETTER CARE FOR COMM. TREES

Elm diseases may be responsible for saving many more trees than they destroy. This case of good coming from evil is cited by M. W. Staples, field supervisor of the Davey Tree Expert Co., who reports many communities, alerted to the threat of Dutch elm, phloem necrosis and other elm maladies, are becoming more conscious of their trees and—consequently—taking better care of all of them.

This new emphasis on needed care undoubtedly will save trees of all kinds, since healthy and vigorous specimens are better able to withstand insect invasions, disease, drought and many other troubles, the authority points out.

As a result, many cities and towns are planning tree planting programs for replacement and general beautification. Replacements are a prime consideration, Mr. Staples adds, for too many towns today have weak-wooded trees, such as soft maples. These will outlive their usefulness at an early age.

Elm pestilences have hit heavily in many northeastern and mid-western states. Western states, except Colorado, have not yet been affected, but should be on guard with replacement programs when and if the maladies strike.

In each section of the country, favored replacement should be selected from good street trees that thrive in that area. These should meet high standards for beauty, hardness, strength and longevity, Mr. Staples advises.

Danger of Raw Milk

Milk is just as nourishing to disease germs as it is to you. Germs can enter milk from the cow, from the milker's hands or equipment, or in any of the marketing processes. Milk can transmit to human beings such diseases as typhoid fever, scarlet fever, septic sore throat, food poisoning, undulant fever, diphtheria, and tuberculosis. Despite all precautions taken in the cleanest, best-equipped dairies, it is possible for these disease germs to contaminate milk. Yet the germs of all these diseases can be killed if the milk is heated to 143° for one-half minute or 160° for 15 seconds, then cooled again. That process is pasteurization. Pasteurized milk is the only safe milk, health department experts agree.

Penicillin as Syphilis Cure

Penicillin is being widely used by Minnesota physicians to treat both syphilis and gonorrhea. However, the warning that a "quick cure" with penicillin may not constitute a "sure cure" is voiced by Dr. H. G. Irvine, acting director of the division of venereal diseases of the Minnesota health department. "Although penicillin cures many cases of syphilis in a short time, it does not cure all cases quickly, and additional treatment with other drugs is often necessary," says Dr. Irvine. He adds the advice that penicillin must be given early to be of real value.

HOW MANY ZEROS IN SEPTILLION

People who study insects, income taxes, and distance to the stars are used to dealing in big figures. And it's not often the experts get caught up, but it happened the other day over the problem of the number of zeros in septillion. And it happened because of the statewide 1949 Illinois fly-control campaign.

A new story from the Illinois College of Agriculture quoting College entomologists, stated that one pair of flies, reproducing unmolested and with all offspring living, could produce 191 more flies during the 4-month fly season this summer.

"That's 191 with 18 zeros after it," the story said.

But alert Earl Brown, Carmi, in White county, saw a tremendous mistake in that explanation. He told Paul C. Pittman, White county Farm Adviser, that septillion should have 24 zeros after it. And Pittman jokingly informed the College of its mistake.

"Correct," declared Professor S. S. Cairns, head of the University's mathematics department, when asked if 24 zeros was the right number.

That's a mistake of 190,999,809,000,000,000,000,000 flies!

Says H. B. Petty, insect specialist in the College of Agriculture and Illinois Natural History Survey: "Despite the mistake the big point is still that we're going to run Freddie Fly right out of Illinois this summer, no matter how many there are. Both town folks and farm people are joining the statewide 1949 Illinois fly-control campaign. We're using a double-barreled attack—first, clean out their breeding places right now, and then follow up with fly-killing sprays. Our slogan is 'In '48 it worked out fine, let's do better in '49.'"

MISSISSIPPI POST HAS ROVING ISLAND ON HAND

GULFPORT, Miss.—An island owned by an American Legion Post is developing a roving disposition.

The Joe Graham Post 119 here has appealed to the Mississippi Soil Conservation Commission to find out why Ship Island apparently is slowly sliding into the Gulf.

The post bought the sandy, nine-mile knoll in 1933. Historic Fort Massachusetts was then in the center of the island. The post has now discovered that the old fort is on the north side of the island.

Ship Island appears to be moving out from under the fort.

Shipping Fever Strikes In Changeable Weather

The changeable weather of early spring is a danger season for shipping fever in livestock, veterinarians warn. And when bad weather is coupled with crowded shipping conditions, interrupted feeding schedules and mishandling, heavy losses are likely to result.

Purchasers of replacement stock as well as those who handle lot shipments are urged to be on constant guard against this disease, which causes respiratory trouble and blood poisoning. Pneumonia and paralysis develop in severe cases and death is likely to follow if diagnosis and treatment are delayed.

An unfortunate feature of this disease is that symptoms may not appear until a day or more after the animal arrives at its destination. If in the meantime the animal is allowed to mingle with healthy stock, the others may become infected. Still another danger is the recovered animal, since those which have had shipping fever may remain as carriers.

Control measures call for vaccination with bacterins at least two weeks prior to shipment. Serum treatment both before shipment and immediately after arrival is an alternative safeguard. Proper shelter from bad weather en route, along with regular feeding and watering, also helps to prevent outbreaks. Quarantine of all shipped animals at destination is a final and highly important precaution, since this keeps them from spreading infection to stock already on the premises.

Glett Cure

Vent glett in chickens is easily recognized by the unpleasant odor of a cheesy-like infection around the vent. Affected birds should be removed from the flock, but they are often rejected for market purposes. Such birds may be treated with iodoform, a yellow powder available at most drug stores. The application of a pinch of the iodoform every two or three days may completely cure the infection in a short time, depending upon the severity of the case.

HOW THEY'LL FINISH

Baseball is here. Hottest spot in the game this season will be occupied by players-manager Lou Boudreau, who last season led the Cleveland Indians to their first pennant since 1920, according to Watson Fenimore, sports editor, Pathfinder news magazine.

Fenimore predicts that major league teams will finish in this order:

American: Cleveland, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, Washington, St. Louis, Chicago.

National: Boston, Brooklyn, St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia, New York, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati.

SWEET POTATO CHIPS

Salted and dusted with powdered sugar, a new kind of potato-chip will appear soon on delicatessen shelves. It is no more like the present potato-chips, say its inventors, than white potatoes are like—uh—sweet potatoes. Reason: the new chips are made from sweet potatoes, by a system worked out at the Georgia Experiment Station, near Griffin—Pathfinder News Magazine.

GOOD QUALITY HAY KEEPS COWS MILKING BEST

Good quality hay pays off at the milk pail.

A Cook County dairyman knows from experience. He was forced to change from green, leafy, second-cutting alfalfa to poor-quality, coarse hay, and every one of his cows gave 5 pounds less milk per day. For 15 cows that would mean 75 pounds, worth about $2.50 a day. That amounts to about $75 a month.

This Summer . . .

Put up Hay when Vitamin-Rich Leaves are Still on the Stems!

There's little risk of a ruined hay crop on the Clarence Holmes farm, right, where a slatted-floor type hay drier eliminates weather worries, improves hay quality and reduces the dangers of spontaneous combustion. 65 tons of hay were mow cured last year by the fan and motor which sent drying air under a slatted floor, then up and through the hay. Panels in top of main air tunnel can be lowered so air will be forced through hay placed over the tunnel.

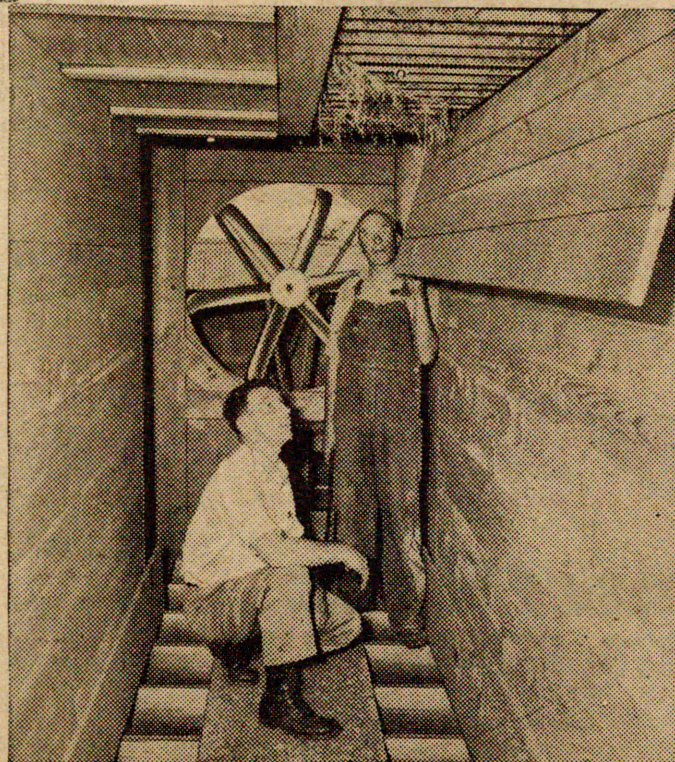

A hay drier (like sketch above) helps to make every cutting like a "third" cutting. Get the latest information on newly developed hay handling and curing procedures from the agricultural engineer of your electric company. He'll be glad to give you complete reports on hay drying research in northern Illinois. There's no obligation, of course.

THERE'S no shattering and loss of leaves when you cure your hay in the mow, with an easily installed, economically operated hay drier. Get the most feed value from your hay crop. Cut hay at the proper stage of maturity and put it on the hay drier before leaves are so dry they shatter during handling operations. Hay then cures safely in the mow, away from rain and uncertain weather conditions and retains maximum amounts of color and feed values.

You'll find it simple to install a hay drying system to force air through the hay. A forced air duct system operates easily and economically—eliminates dependence on favorable weather conditions and makes mow curing a successful and profitable operation for any farmer.

The agricultural engineer from your local electric company will be glad to stop at your farm to give you practical information and advisory help in planning a mow curing system for your barn. Contact him now, by phone or card, so he can help you get your hay drier ready in time for this year's first cutting.
